WILSON ASKS REPEAL OF TOLL EXEMPTIONS

PRESIDENT WILSON MAKES PERSONAL APPEAL IN SPEECH TO JOINT SESSION OF CONGRESS.

IS TREATY VIOLATION

Urge Congress to Support United States' Foreign Policy and Bands Exemptions as "Mistaken Economic Policy."

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, March 5.—Plans were completed early today for congress to hear in joint session President Wilson's personal plea for a repeal of the Panama tolls exemption.

Long before the hour set for the president's sixth personal address to the legislative branch of the government, the capital corridors were crowded with men and women armed with tickets of admission to the galleries. The Interstate commerce committee expects to report a bill for repeal within a few days.

President Wilson made a personal appeal to sustain the national honor of the United States in upholding the treaty obligations by repealing the Panama tolls exemption against which Great Britain protests. He asked congress to do "in support of the American policy" that an exemption for American ships not only was a "mistaken economic policy" but was in contradiction of the Hay-Pauncefote clause.

Chamber Packed. The house chamber and galleries were packed as usual to hear the president read his address. The French and German ambassadors and other members of the diplomatic corps were in spaces reserved for them. No official of the British embassy was present. The Misses Wilson had places in the executive gallery, but Mrs. Wilson was for the first time absent. She had not yet recovered from the shock of a fall in the White House a day or two ago.

President Wilson reached the capital ten minutes before the time for the reading and waited in Speaker Clark's room until 12:30 o'clock when he was escorted into the chamber and promptly began his brief address as soon as a burst of applause had died away.

Mr. Wilson's message was so brief that he had finished reading almost before the surprised galleries realized he had begun. It took less than five minutes and as another burst of applause greeted its close Mr. Wilson hurried out of the chamber and drove back to the White House. The joint session at noon adjourned and the two houses resumed their work.

"I still don't know how to deal with others matters of even greater delicacy and nearer consequence if you do not grant it to me in ungrudging measure," said the president.

Urge Generous Action.

The large thing to do is the one thing we can afford to do; a voluntary withdrawal from a position everywhere questioned and misunderstood. We ought to reverse our action without raising the question whether we are right or wrong, and so on, as we deserve our reputation without quibble or reservation."

President Wilson's address, the shortest he has yet delivered to congress—exactly 430 words—was as follows:

"Gentlemen of the Congress: I have come to you upon an errand which can be very briefly performed, but I fear that you will no longer measure its importance by the number of sentences in which I state it. No communication I have addressed to the press carried with it more far-reaching implications for the interest of the country, and come now to speak upon a matter with regard to which I am charged in a peculiar degree, by the constitution itself with personal responsibility."

"I have come to ask for the repeal of that provision of the Panama canal act of August 24, 1912, which exempts vessels engaged in the coastwise trade of the United States from payment of tolls, and to urge upon you the justice, the wisdom and the larger policy of such a repeal with the most earnestness of which I am capable.

Mistaken Economic Policy.

"In my own judgment, very fully considered and maturely formed, that exemption constitutes a mistaken economic policy from every point of view, and moreover in plain violation of the treaty with Great Britain concerning the same concluded on November 18, 1901. But I did not come to you to urge my personal views. I have come to state to you a fact and a situation. Whatever may be our own differences of opinion concerning this much-debated measure, its meaning is not debated outside the United States. Every one else in the language of the special interpretation given, but one interpretation, and that interpretation precludes the exemption from asking you to repeal. We consented to the treaty; its language we accepted, if we did not originally fit, and we are too big, too powerful, too self-respecting a nation to interpret with too strained or refined a reading the words of our own promises just because we have power enough to give us leave to read them as we please. The large thing to do is the one thing we can afford to do, a voluntary withdrawal from a position everywhere questioned and misunderstood. We ought to reverse our action without raising the question whether we were right or wrong, and so once more deserve our reputation for generosity and the redemption of every obligation without quibble or hesitation."

"I ask this of you in support of the foreign policy of the administration. I shall not know how to deal with other matters of even greater delicacy and nearer consequence if you do not grant it to me in ungrudging measure."

In Dispute Two Years.

The Panama tolls question has been a subject of dispute for nearly two years. Diplomatic correspondents between Great Britain and the United States found the question unsolved when President Taft left office.

Except for an assurance to James Bryan, then British ambassador, when he left the United States a year ago, that the question would be taken up in the regular session of congress, President Wilson has never directed any official communication to England on the tolls question. The president recently told callers he had never discussed the matter formally with the British ambassador here. Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, because he believed the obligation on the part of the United States to repeal the exemption clause was one which this government itself should realize without outside influence or pressure.

Administration leaders in both house and senate have assured the president that with the delivery of a message by him showing that international circumstances had arisen since the measure was last debated, the president's suggestion for repeal would be met with prompt action.

Not a sound interrupted the president as he read his message and as he finished the assemblage was all smiles, the demonstration being regarded as tribute to his first year in office and the first year of democratic supremacy in the government. Within ten minutes after the president had addressed congress Senator Chilton, demander of the canal committee, introduced a bill authorizing the president to suspend tolls.

The section which Senator Chilton's bill would add to the Panama law is as follows:

The Clause.

"The president, notwithstanding anything herein contained, is authorized and empowered by proclamation to make, suspend, alter, change, or abolish any tolls contemplated or provided for by this act and may prescribe tolls to be charged in any case in which the tolls are prohibited herein."

Sent to Committee.

Speaker Calhoun ordered the address referred to the interstate commerce committee. Chairman Adamson, who will have charge of the repeal legislation, declared the address fitted his ideas exactly.

"The president's address pleases me," he said, "because it means honesty at home and justice abroad. It is not true that we are surrendering to Great Britain if we repeal the free tolls clause. I and other democrats took a position against this piece of rascality before England ever heard of it."

Democratic Leader Underwood declined to discuss the president's address.

BRYAN'S PLANS ARE DECLARED IMMATURE

Proposed Trip of Secretary Bryan to South America to Be Further Discussed.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, March 5.—Plans for Secretary Bryan's trip to South America at the time of the Pan-American conference next September were going forward today in the Pan-American union and the state department, but officials declared they yet were to be made up at this time. Secretary Bryan's announcement that he had accepted the invitation of American union aroused the greatest interest among the Latin-American diplomats here who recalled the visit of Mr. Bryan's predecessors, Secretaries Root and Knox, Senor Suarez, the minister from Chile, extended the invitation and President Wilson readily approved the plan.

While Mr. Bryan plans to leave here in July, going down the west coast visiting the nations there, and to return by way of the east coast, visiting Argentina, Uruguay and Brazil, arrangements have not sufficiently advanced to make it certain whether the secretary will go by the Panama canal route, although he might as the waterway will be ready for ships at that time.

RACES WITH DEATH ON SPECIAL TRAIN

Millionaire Being Rushed From Colorado to Rochester, Minnesota, for Operation.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Lajuna, Colo., March 5.—A special train of four cars bearing C. W. Post, millionaire manufacturer of Battle Creek, Michigan, who is making a race with death across the country, reached here at 7:30 this morning and departed ten minutes later over the main line of the Santa Fe for Kansas City.

Mr. Post is being rushed to Rochester, Minnesota, for an operation which it is hoped will save his life. It was reported here that he was standing the journey as well as could be expected.

At Kansas City.

Kansas City, March 5.—The special train bearing C. W. Post from the Pacific coast to Rochester, Minnesota, to submit to an imperative surgical operation, came out of Colorado at 4:45 this morning and sped out upon the Kansas plains at a rate which, according to the officials of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe will bring it into this city at 9:30 tonight, an hour ahead of the Santa Fe's fast limited that left Los Angeles two hours and twenty-five minutes ahead of the special.

Reports to the railway's office here said Mr. Post was racing early and was in no immediate danger. The train is made up of a Pullman for Mr. Post, his physicians, nurses, two tourist sleepers for the last, and the locomotive.

MOORE RESIGNS AS COUNSELLOR TODAY

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, March 5.—John B. Moore's resignation was effective today and the state department was without a counsellor. Mr. Moore prepared to take up his work for the Carnegie endowment for international和平 and later to resume his place as head of the departmental international law at Columbia University. Although the official correspondence between President Wilson and Secretary Bryan and Mr. Moore announced the resignation, emphasized that the counsellor was leaving the government service only because the term for which he had promised to serve was at an end, there was continued discussion in official and diplomatic circles of harmony between Secretary Bryan and Counselor Moore and persistent stories of how Mr. Moore became dissatisfied with the arrangement of his duties with the state department. While it was understood that Mr. Moore's views on the recognition of the Huerta government and the administration course in other foreign affairs differed from those of his chief, all officials took pains to say that the consular had carried out administration policies when once agreed upon.

ROETHE EXPERIENCED FOR STUMPING TOUR

Proves to Be Able to Hold Mail Carriers Job With "Legomobile"—Is Delegate to Convention.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., March 5.—Henry Roethe, candidate for governor, who expects to make his stump tour on foot, has been named by Grant county rural mail carriers as a delegate to the state convention of rural carriers at Elay Bay May 29 and 30.

Roethe has already outlined his stump tour which will carry him up and down the state. He claims he will walk all the way. For six years he has been a substitute carrier on a route out of his home town, Elay Bay.

In applying for the place he wrote the postmaster general that he wishes to deliver mail "via legomobile." The postmaster general's office wrote back, "Application received. Action on same deferred for further information. What in thunder is legomobile?"

Roethe's route is twenty-four miles long and he has made the trip about forty times. He claims that he can do it in the time the regular carrier does it with a team.

"At first," said Roethe, "I often accepted invitations from farmers to stop for dinner but I found that eating those big meals incapacitated me for walking. Now I carry a few sandwiches and make the trip without trouble."

With the coming of the parcel post I had to quit carrying mail a foot or get a wheel barrow. Now I use a team and wagon.

UNEMPLOYED LEADER BROUGHT TO COURT

New York Police Arrest Mob for Rioting at Churches—Want Shorter Working Hours.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, March 5.—Unshaven and defiant Frank Tenenbaum, erstwhile waiter, but now leader of an army of unemployed which, under the banners of the Industrial Workers of the World, stormed New York churches nightly until the police interfered, was brought into Jefferson Market police court today for arraignment on a charge of inciting two hundred of his followers held during the night in three separate prisons, were sent to the Tombs further down town, all charged with disorderly conduct.

Tenenbaum was represented by Justus Shelleff, a lawyer retained by the Industrial Workers.

"This is only the start," said Tenenbaum. "The I. W. W. is behind every man arrested. If necessary we will bring out agitators from the city to do the next few days. This means so many men are unemployed that the factories are working their hands from 12 to 14 hours a day. We are going to send men in these factories and demand that the working hours be reduced to eight. This will solve the whole problem."

PURITAN AND THE SABBATH

Observance of Day of Rest Undoubtedly Necessary to the Nation's Well Being.

All forward looking minds must feel some apprehension for the mental, moral and especially the physical well-being of the American people, as they see how the Sabbath is more and more given over to business and pleasure, declares the Universalist Leader. No nation can be strong unless it has a rest day every week; no man or community can be spiritually strong unless he or it sets aside and uses the Sabbath for worship of the unseen spiritual power that made and upholds the universe and its freight of life. Gladstone attributed much of his vigorous health and his long life to the fact that nothing, not even cabinet making, ever prevented him from attending church. The puritan in America gave the enduring moral fiber to our national life. His sabbatarianism was a portion of this might in him; he revered God, he mastered earth. A revival of puritanic sabbatarianism would greatly benefit this land of ours. Modern civilization would, of course, make the old sabbath quiet much different than it was in the primitive communities of three generations ago, but we are noisy about many needless things, sports that do not rest, amusements that do not recreate, business that does not yield a permanent profit. Consider the old adage: "The Sabbath is for works of mercy and necessity only." One phase of the puritan life has long appealed to us, the fact that so little cooking was done on Sunday. The Sunday meals were prepared on Saturday. The slave of the cook stove was manumitted on the Sabbath. Could we not imitate that custom and have simpler meals on the Sabbath, thus giving freedom to worship to our modern kitchen bondwoman, whether mother or hired servant?

MANY IMPROVEMENTS MADE IN THIS CITY

Property Owners Remodel, Repair, and Otherwise Better the Condition of Their Buildings.

Janesville is getting all dressed up, either for that court fair next summer or merely on general principles. At any rate she is making efforts for improvement in more than one quarter.

At the corner of Jackson and Holmes street, Joseph Connell is remodelling the Keller homestead into a four room apartment to be ready about the first of May. Mr. Connell stated that each of the apartments would contain five rooms and a bath, and each would be heated by a separate furnace. There will be hot and cold water, and soft water and other modern conveniences which will make the apartments as up to date and comfortable as possible.

At the corner of elegant and Franklin streets Chas. Gunz is having the old house torn down. He has no definite plans for building there, but thought the corner would be improved by the absence of this building. Several parties have been looking at this corner with building purposes in view.

New store fronts are being put on the stores of Chicory Neimer Candy Company in the Myers block, Sulzerland & Sons, and McCue & Buss in the Stevens block, and the Woolworth and ten cent store in the Tallman block.

The store now occupied by Hall, Sayles & Field is being enlarged by the addition of the old Recorder rooms for the occupancy of Amos Rehberg's new clothing store.

All of these improvements will add a great deal to the appearance of prosperity of the city. Janesville has a reputation for being of a steady reliable nature, and these signs of improvement are indications that the town is in good condition.

There has also been considerable comment on the fact that at least two of the prominent fraternal organizations are discussing the proposition of building club houses for their members. Good sites for this purpose seem to be scarce, but nevertheless, definite action is being taken to secure good locations that will be central and accessible. Such buildings would be a great addition to the city in every way.

TO CONFIRM CLASS AT TRINITY CHURCH

Eishop Webb of Milwaukee Diocese Will Conduct Services Here on Sunday.

On Sunday the Rt. Rev. William Walter Webb, D. D., bishop of the diocese of Milwaukee, will make his ninth annual visitation to Trinity church this city, and administer the sacrament of confirmation. A good sized class has been in preparation for several weeks.

Bishop Webb will arrive Saturday afternoon and will be the guest of Superintendent and Mrs. J. T. Hooper at the School for the Blind, and will address the pupils of the school Saturday night. Sunday morning he will be the celebrant of the holy communion at 7:30 o'clock, and all persons who have been confirmed by him are expected to receive the holy communion at that service. At the service at 10:30 o'clock he will administer confirmation and preach the sermon. In the afternoon he goes to Beloit and will address the students at Beloit college, and in the evening administer confirmation and preach at St. Paul's.

Bishop Webb recently celebrated the 8th anniversary of his consecration to the Episcopate. This phase of the puritan life has long appealed to us, the fact that so little cooking was done on Sunday. The Sunday meals were prepared on Saturday. The slave of the cook stove was manumitted on the Sabbath. Could we not imitate that custom and have simpler meals on the Sabbath, thus giving freedom to worship to our modern kitchen bondwoman, whether mother or hired servant?

FREIGHT CAR THIEVES ROB ST. PAUL CAR OF VALUABLE MERCHANDISE

Employees of the St. Paul railroad discovered that a merchandise car filled from Dubuque, Iowa, to cities on the Mineral Point division had been broken into and a valuable amount of merchandise taken from a dry goods shipment. The extent of the loot cannot be learned until the goods are checked with the bills of lading.

The car broken into was brought to Janesville on the Davis Junction freight train which arrived in this city about nine o'clock Wednesday night and was held over night at the transfer tracks. Yesterday when the switchmen were making up the Mineral Point freight they noticed that the door seal was broken and found two cases of shoes, a case of rubber boots which was filled for Brownsville, a lot of clothing, a order of a Gratot merchant, and a quantity of tools missing.

The authorities are at a loss to know whether the thief broke into the car in Janesville or while it was enroute as it had been held over in several cities. The robbery will be thoroughly investigated as the police and railroad detective will take steps to stop the numerous freight car robberies that have been reported.

Waupun, Wis., March 5.—Dimes and nickels earned by overtime work in the prison shops poured into the collection box here when Chaplain Dowling asked for contributions to purchase more land for the Farm and Home school for boys at Waupun.

The chaplain explained that many in his audience were in prison because they never had a chance. He asked them to help boys now growing to have their opportunity to learn how to live and how to labor. Three prisoners asked the chaplain to put their names on the list for $5.00 each.

When the warden's daughter died last spring, inmates of the pen, raised $50.00 for the purchase of a floral blanket and in other ways they have shown sympathy for those outside the walls.

Jesse Fannhill, the veteran southpaw, plans to bring his career to a close in the same town where he began some twenty years ago. He has plenty of other offers. He could manage any number of minor clubs or go out as a scout if he cared to, but he would prefer to end his baseball activity among the scenes of his youth. Twenty years ago as a kid he started out pitching in the Virginia league and he has written to the manager of the team he first signed with asking for a job. He'll probably get it. And Jesse can still pitch good ball. Not his old-time big league speed, of course, but his arm has not given way altogether yet and he is still that wise and heady pitcher he was of yore.

IROQUOIS WIN FROM GIANTS LAST NIGHT

EDGERTON HIGHS WIN FROM MILTON FIVE

Top-Notchers Defeat Tail-Enders by Speedy Finish in Last Game.

Again the Giants were defeated in their race for honors in the bowling tournament of the Y.M.C.A. The Iroquois took the title home in a closely contested match last evening that was unsettled until the last two frames of the last game, when the members of the Iroquois team got strong and struck out. Their strong finish was too much for the Giants and the good intentions of the latter were broken. The Giants had determined to win this match as they are at the bottom of the ladder and have decided to speed up and give the top-notchers a race for their money. The scores of last night's match:

Huebel's Giants:
Huebel 152 148 124
F. Kohler 110 157 144
Hughes 139 137 129
Hayes 152 163 176
Jacobson 168 178 155

Booth's Iroquois:
W. Kohler 145 104 155
Merrick 158 169 158
Hill 139 170 145
Booth 159 158 187
Osborn 158 148 161

This places the Iroquois at the top of the list and the Giants at the bottom but a renewed interest on the part of some of the bowlers will make a change in this state of affairs before very long.

WEATHER FORECAST.

Light snow to night with some what colder west portion. Friday generally fair.

EVEN AYLWARD.
There are a lot of those reactionary democrats who do not seem to realize that the people have risen in their might and are ready to hit back at any one who opposes them. John Aylward, while not particularly popular with his democratic brethren in Rock county, owing perhaps to political differences, in a recent address in Madison before a dinner club gave some figures that are worth recording. Read them, digest them, then think of the taxes you paid and wonder why? Mr. Aylward said:

The increase in direct state taxes, he contended, are as follows: In 1900, direct state tax, $1,345,000; in fiscal year 1905-1906 state tax, $1,167,000; in 1910-1911, direct state tax, $3,746,000; in 1913-1914, direct state tax, $7,655,310.

"The last year of Governor Scofield's administration cost the state in round numbers $4,000,000," he urged.

"Six years later, the last year of Gov. La Follette's term, cost $5,556,000."

"The last year of Gov. Davidson's term cost $6,474,000."

"The last year of Gov. McGovern's term, the amount provided in the budget is $16,272,124."

A table was presented by Mr. Aylward showing how the returns in taxes from steam railroads, telegraph and telephone companies, insurance companies and inheritance taxes have increased from $1,969,000 in 1900 to $2,661,000 in 1905 to $4,159,000 in 1910 and $5,526,000 in 1913.

He quoted La Follette in 1901 who was amazed by a 50 per cent increase in state expenses in ten years while the present increase, he maintained is 200 per cent in ten years, the gain in total state expenditures amounting from $5,342,000 in 1905 to $16,272,000 in 1914.

"The increase has been four times that which staggered Gov. La Follette," he declared. "Is it any wonder that the people are restless?"

COUNTERFEIT.

Leslie's Weekly is truthful if anything. It hits the nail on the head with a vim that can not be mistaken. It dares man, devil or beast and says what it thinks. It praises where praise is deserved, and condemns where condemnation is needed. One cannot help but admire such practices. One can not help but firmly believe when it says counterfeit it means counterfeit, and that one bad bill may cause a great deal of trouble, but no banker neglects his business just to find one bad bill or coin.

The shepherd may leave the ninety-nine sheep to find one that is lost, but he will not neglect the ninety-nine left in the fold. They will be fed and cared for.

The church calls sinners to repentance, but it does not fail to exhort and encourage those that remain faithful.

The father may kill the fatted calf for the returning prodigal, but the dutiful son who remained at home will inherit the estate.

Let us seek that which is lost, but let us not neglect to hold fast that which is good.

Too much time, money and effort are spent on few misguided and unfortunate human creatures to the neglect of the many who are more deserving.

We have too much legislation for lesser evils and too little for the greater evils that deeply concern the public good.

While we are taking from the inventor the result of his genius, barring the manufacturer from fixing a fair price for his goods, regulating business and harassing the railroads to death, we are neglecting our export trade, entangling our foreign relations, endangering prosperity, undermining self-dependence and weakening patriotism.

The people need brave hearts, steady heads and strong arms. Let us seek to inspire self-reliance, manly courage, faith in one's fellow man, and sublime faith in the goodness of God.

Then may we hope for a renewal of patriotism that will take us back to the good old days when everybody knew the words and everybody sang

"My country 'tis of thee,
Sweet land of liberty,
Of thee I sing!"

It appears as though the progressives of the Roosevelt type and the more progressive of the old line conservatives of the republican party are really getting together again. Meanwhile Wilson is sitting on the lid down at Washington and Taft is sandpapering his golf clubs up at New Haven. Which is happier would not be hard to determine.

All this talk about high taxes, senators and governors and very little about congress. Thus far H. A. Cooper appears to have the republicans tied to himself, which means his re-election without any doubt. It would take more than a democratic landslide in Wisconsin to unseat him.

England may force the United States to act against Mexico after all. It looks as though this waiting and watching method is not proving just what it was cracked up to be. Too bad Bryan is not in the army now to try a little dose of real moral suasion at the point of the bayonet.

Democrats are finding it hard work to make their selection for their nominee for governor. Thus far John Aylward has the field to himself as candidate for the senate, but it would not be surprising if others entered the race when he formally comes out.

New York has been having a taste of real genuine winter after all. The great white way must have been a sight the day after the fourteen inches of snow fell and the soot had time to settle. Something like pictures of Pittsburgh at night as it were.

Figures are funny things. Stop and consider this fact that in 1911 there were but 1240 actual employees of the larger commissions, while one year later the total number had grown to 1919. Luck in odd numbers as it were. Luck for whom?

A year ago yesterday Woodrow Wilson was sworn in as president of the United States and there has been something doing ever since. If Wilson did not start it, Bryan did. Meanwhile the country runs along just the same.

The sight of a self-confessed murderer seeking justification for his act by trying to save his worthless neck by blackening his wife's character is disgusting. It is to be hoped the jury will look at the matter in the real light.

The next thing to go up is the haircut. Well, grandmothers used bows and made good jobs of it years ago. Perhaps they may come in vogue again. Who knows? The hoop skirt may also come back, perhaps?

The tango has evidently come to stay. Even the Mississippi river steamers are putting in specially built dancing floors so that travellers can tango all the way from St. Paul to New Orleans if they want to.

The race is now officially on for a member of the city commission with six candidates in the field. It promises to be most interesting affairs before it is all done with.

This taxation question will not down. It is all right to offer excuses and lay the blame on the highways but some way or other it does not help pay the levy when it is made.

It is about time to hear from the Ohio river. Flood reports are due any time now that New York has had the biggest snow storm since 1888.

TESTIMONY CLOSED IN LOGUIDICE CASE

Attorneys Make Closing Arguments and Action Goes to Jury for Verdict Late Today.

At three o'clock this afternoon testimony was closed in the case of the state against Philip Loguidice, the Beloit Italian charged with being an accessory to the crime of mayhem on the person of Frances D'Amore. The attorneys, Stanley G. Woodward and C. D. Rosa for the state and Woolsey and Arnold for the defense, made their closing arguments to the jury, which retired to consider a verdict late this afternoon.

The defendant was called to the witness stand this morning. He testified as to the whereabouts on the night the alleged crime was committed. He denied it or being in any way responsible for it. He denied making threats against the D'Amore girl and said he had not spoken to her for a year or more. Great emphasis was placed by the defense upon an alleged threat against the complainant witness which were said to have been made twenty months ago by another Italian who subsequently left Beloit. Members of the D'Amore family claimed to have known nothing of this man or his threats, according to testimony brought out by the state in rebuttal.

Jurors not occupied in the trial of this case were excused by Judge Grimm until nine o'clock Friday morning.

His mother, saw one of her grand uncles, who was at that time living in Hamilton, when she was eight years old. Since then she has seen none of her relatives and is unable to say whether or not they are alive. As far as Mr. Moore can remember, there were four of his grand aunts and uncles. Death Rate After 40 Is Increasing; Observing Eugenics Laws Will Keep Down Insurance Rates, Says Wiggin

(Editor's Note)—Albert E. Wiggin, the well-known journalist and lecturer, has written a series of articles for this newspaper on the general subject of eugenics. Mr. Wiggin has studied the subject many years and is regarded as an authority, although many scientists differ with him on important points.

(By Albert E. Wiggin.)

Race deterioration is upon us. We are a dying race. The death rate above forty is increasing. The accompanying table from the work of E. B. Rittenhouse, the great actuary of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, puts this beyond all cavil. There has been since 1880 a decrease in the death rate up to thirty-five years of age. At this point it has remained practically stationary. Above thirty-five all the triumphs of modern science have been helpless to effect a decline in the prospects of death. At age forty the American people are dying 13 per cent faster than their grandfathers. We are showing less average vitality than one grandparent, who knew not medicine, who were guileless of bath tubs, who hibernated through the winter, who swallowed microbes by the billions, who never knew the unhappy loss of what my negro calls the "uniform appendix," and who never laid on the operating table to wake up and find half their anatomies and all their pocketbooks had been removed.

Above the age of fifty the death rate has run up 29 per cent. Above sixty it is greater by over 26 per cent.

Now, my friend of forty, do not be discouraged. You have no greater probability of dying than if you had attained the age of forty or fifty, your grandfather's day. These statistics do not mean that it has been discovered that you are about to be laid on the shelf or beneath the daise.

It means that from some cause the average vitality of the American people is weakening. The diseases of the kidneys, heart and blood vessels, the so-called habit diseases, native stock.

May the man on the street will wake up seriously to eugenics when increase as in the hereditary diseases. Then you wish longer life you had to pay more for life insurance. Without

What is the cause of all this? Mr. Rittenhouse will allow but one. The death expectation is bound to increase. Already we are taxing our life. If this be the sole cause, then we need not be alarmed. It does not mean a genuine loss of inherited vigor. It would not mean our descendants would be any weaker. The voice of science is that "you can will the individual, but you cannot tarnish the sacred stream of heredity."

Anything you acquire is not inherited as such by your children.

Our biologists believe there are other large causes of the increasing death rate far more alarming than the wear and tear of rapid life.

Hygiene, altruism, charity, medical science for at least seventy-five years have been prescribing the unfit and weaklings on an enormous scale. Their children are now coming to maturity amongst us. A hundred years ago nature acted like a life insurance company. She took those who had a poor prospect of life and sternly weeded them out. Now to-day the insurance company examines the puny of body and merely rejects them.

But before modern ignorance came in with her endless beneficence (and we all rightly glory in this) nature examined every man for more thoroughly than any medical examiner. She searched every cell and every tissue. And, still, when she found the weak spot she killed him. The vigor of the race was thus maintained.

But on all hands, partly through the fact that the abler and more vigorous stocks have quit having children and partly through the suspension of "natural selection" and "the survival of the fittest" which has been accomplished in a thousand ways, the weaklings are preserved as never before and are indeed multiplied nearly twice as fast as the old ones.

May the man on the street will wake up seriously to eugenics when it begins to effect the price he pays for life insurance. Without eugenics life insurance rates will soon rise. They will rise because the death expectation is bound to increase. Already we are taxing our selves for asylums and hospitals and jails to take care of millions who ought never to have been born.

And while nature if let alone would weed out the weaklings and while the life insurance company rejects them, yet we accord them the fine and heroic prize of reproducing themselves. We encourage them in every way to do it and thus expand their weakness through the ever-widening circle of human descent.

Universal hygiene will in time wean the race. That is, provided we do not change other things. Let us keep all our hygiene. Let us extend it. But let us determine that the weaklings thus saved shall not be the bearers of the torch of heredity to the next generations. As Herbert Spencer said: "We are (through philanthropy and hygiene) providing our descendants with an ever increasing host of enemies."

So, let us do our duty to the weaklings thus saved. Let us not be the bearers of the torch of heredity to the next generations. As Herbert Spencer said: "We are (through philanthropy and hygiene) providing our descendants with an ever increasing host of enemies."

YEAR'S HISTORY OF MEXICAN REBELLION GIVEN BY AMERICAN

American Journalist Tells History of Present Trouble of Huerta Ruling In Mexico.
(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Vera Cruz, March 5.—Just a year ago Victoriano Huerta took possession of the Mexican government and in spite of murders, treachery, oppression and the hundreds of other means he has taken to keep himself in power, each day has seen him slipping further downward on his bloody, self-constructed skids. A review of the 300 and more days that Huerta has been in power discloses that on no single day has he been as strong as on the day before; there has not been a minute in his career as dictator that he has seen reason for hoping that the end of the grim road would bring him peace and success.

Five years ago the terrible "decena trágica," as the Mexicans call it—"the bloody ten days"—took place. Francisco Madero, who had driven Diaz from Mexico a little over a year before, sat in his presidential office in the palace; Huerta was one of his generals; his ablest general, in fact. Matters were more or less peaceful in the capital, though Orozco, in the north had turned against his old time commander, Madero, because Madero had taken into his government many of the men—"Grafters" Orozco called them—who had been associated with Diaz. But Orozco held only Juarez and Chihuahua, and had been hopelessly defeated by Huerta himself, a short time before.

But, up to the palace, on the morning of February 8, marched a crowd of soldiers headed by Gen. Reyes and Field Marshal Diaz had corrupted a part of the army and had gone with him to seize the palace. Thousands of Mexican citizens filled the great park opposite the palace, as Diaz and Reyes marched up to the portals; they were onlookers of a historic event, and, in truth, one of the bloodiest events of Mexican history. Out of the portals of the palace issued a band of soldiers. Diaz and Reyes expected them to yield up the palace; that had been the plan. But somehow the plan went away. From the gateways came a burst of bullets. From the roof of the palace came a deluge of machine gun fire. A bullet went through Reyes' forehead. Soldiers fell by scores. But, worst of all, the onlookers in the park were caught by the rain of death. They fell in heaps and mounds, dead and dying, men, women and children. Like people in a theater fire panic they rushed from the park, seeking the side streets; but the bullets mowed them down. Again, in the terrible history of Mexico, a dynasty was fighting for its life and what mattered the lives of a thousand or more onlookers? A thousand of them fell there under the palms and eucalyptus trees in the park. Only the dark ages show more terrible sights than that. And what is to be said of the hours that followed on that Sunday morning, when the wounded lay screaming in the sun? When physicians who passed among them were themselves wounded and killed? Or, of the next two days, when the dead were piled in mounds and burned after being covered with oil? Or, of the third day, when a gas main was punctured and the escaping gas was lighted and converted into a 20th century funeral pyre over which bodies were placed to be consumed by the gas flames? The fire from the pulice drove Diaz back. Many of his men deserted. His band hurried into a side street, where they gathered around their puzzled leader.

"Something is wrong," said Diaz. "These palace soldiers were to have surrendered." "What will you do now?" asked an American friend of Diaz, who came hurrying to the spot. "I must get away. We must all fly," said Diaz. "Why not go to arsenal?" suggested the American. Diaz's face lighted. Such a move had not occurred to him. At the arsenal were all the elements necessary for fighting.

"To the arsenal," he cried out to his men. They dashed a mile through the streets on horseback and on foot. At the arsenal there were only a few soldiers. Four of them were killed by Diaz's men and within a few moments Diaz was safe behind the heavy walls of the great stone building, surrounded by more ammunition, guns and cannon than he could use. Men began ten days of fighting, with ships flying over the city, with tens of thousands of citizens locked in their homes with hundreds killed in the side streets. "Don't worry," President Madero would tell the newspaper men who, by devons means, found their way to the palace every day. "We'll whip them soon." But, on the tenth day, at noon, an astonishing thing happened. A representative of General Victoriano Huerta, Madero's standby, the man on whom the president depended mostly for safety, marched into Madero's office in the palace, and arrested him. Almost at the same time, Huerta himself, who had invited Gustave Madero, brother of the president to dine with him at a cafe, laid his hand on Gustave's shoulder and said, "You're under arrest."

The dynasty of Madero had fallen. Huerta's treachery became apparent. It had been his duty to overcome Diaz; instead, he had plotted with Diaz and together they had decided to put the Maderos out of the way and take over the government themselves. The fighting ceased. Huerta was declared provisional president. The two Maderos were put in jail. The next day the news went out that Gustave Madero had been killed. A band of soldiers had taken him into the yard of the arsenal and said, "Well give you a chance to get away. Now go as fast as you can." And while he ran they had shot him dead, according to the brutal Mexican custom known as "the low of flight."

The world looked on, waiting the fate of Francisco Madero. Those who knew him as "the low of flight," nothing but Madero's death could be expected; the world at large could hardly believe that he would be slain. A few days later newspaper correspondents were called to the palace at midnight and informed that Madero, the former president had been slain.

WILSON BACKWATERS ON PARTY PLATFORM GIVING FREE TOLLS

Farmers of Nation Vitally Interested in Administration Policy on Repealing Toll Act.

By Winfield Jones.

Washington, D. C., March 5.—That President Wilson is not consistent in his announced determination to repeal the free tolls clause of the Panama Canal Act, and that the president has completely reversed his previous beliefs on the tolls question, was shown conclusively in the house last week by Representative Joseph R. Knowland of California.

The following occurred in the house last Saturday, and is given verbatim as taken from the house proceedings of that day:

Mr. J. R. Knowland—Mr. Speaker, I wish to extend my remarks by inserting the record a speech delivered by President Wilson to 2,500 farmers at Washington Park, N. J., August 15, 1914, in which he deplores the non-existence of an American merchant marine and directs attention to the Panama canal, which he says will allow the farmers to ship their products to the Pacific by way of Atlantic coastwise steamers. He then points out that the house and senate have passed a bill for free tolls for American ships through the canal and prohibiting ships to operate through the waterway owned by American railroad companies, declaring that everything done in the interest of cheap transportation is done directly for the farmer. He winds up by stating that the platform is not molasses to catch flies, and that gentlemen who talk one way and vote another are going to be retired to private and quiet retreat.

Gov. Wilson, in part:

"Now, there is another matter you know; we are digging a tremendous ditch across the Isthmus of Panama. It is predicted by the engineers that we shall be able to open it to the ships of the world by the year 1915. What interest have you in opening it to the ships of the world? We do not own the ships of the world. By a very ingenious process, which I would like to tell you about, the legislation of the United States has destroyed the merchant marine of the United States. The chief road by which your crops travel to the Orient is through the Suez canal. They do not go around the world. Most of your crops do not show you the short road to the Orient, because they are spread out.

"If you get a globe and draw a circle around the globe you will see your short road is through the Suez canal not across the Pacific, and that the western farmer, therefore, has to ship his crops across the continent in order to reach the ships that are to take that road. And when his crops reach the port, do they find American ships treating for them? Not at all. In most cases in a single ship carrying the American flag goes through that canal carrying freight."

"Some ships carry the American flag through that canal, but they are mostly private vessels. A friend of mine who has just traveled around the world told me that he did not see the American flag once between New York and Hong Kong, going by the way of the canal, until he reached the Island of Ceylon, and then saw the flag of Mr. James Gordon Bennett's yacht. If that does not rates around the canal that you would agree the continent.

"The farmers of this country are, in my judgment, just as much concerned in the policy of the United States with regard to that canal as any other class of citizens of the United States. Probably they are more concerned than any other one class, and what I am most desirous to see is the

American flag once between New York and Hong Kong, going by the way of the canal, until he reached the Island

of Ceylon, and then saw the flag of

Mr. James Gordon Bennett's yacht. If they would do that, then you would have the shortest road to the Orient.

They would be in the greatest arteries

of their own life and prosperity. Everything that is done in the interest of cheap transportation is done directly by the farmer as well as for other men. So that you ought not to grudge the millions poured out for the deepening and opening of old and new waterways and the markets which are chosen by you.

"One of the great objects in cutting that great ditch across the Isthmus of Panama is to allow farmers who are near the Atlantic to ship to the Pacific by way of the Atlantic ports, to allow all the farmers on what I may call this part of the continent, to find an outlet at ports of the Gulf or the ports of the Atlantic seaboard, and then to have coastwise steamers carry their products down around the canal and up the Pacific coast or down the coast of South America.

"Now, at present there are no ships to do that and one of the bills pending—passed, I believe, yesterday by the senate as it had passed the house—provides for free toll for all ships through that canal and prohibits any ships from passing through which is owned by any American railroad company.

"You see the object of that is to give the railroads to compete with themselves, because we understand that kind of competition. We want water carriage to compete with land carriage, so as to be perfectly sure that you are going to get the best rates around the canal than you would get on the continent.

"The farmers of this country are, in my judgment, just as much concerned in the policy of the United States with regard to that canal as any other class of citizens of the United States. Probably they are more concerned than any other one class, and what I am most desirous to see is the

and Hong Kong, going by the way of

the canal, until he reached the Island

of Ceylon, and then saw the flag of

they would do that, then you would

They would be in the greatest arteries

of their own life and prosperity. Everything that is done in the interest of cheap transportation is done directly by the farmer as well as for other men. So that you ought not to grudge

the millions poured out for the deepening and opening of old and new waterways and the markets which are

"Our platform is not molasses to catch flies. It means business. It means what it says. It is the utterance of earnest and honest men, who intend to do business along those lines and who are not waiting to see whether they can catch votes with those promises before they determine whether they are going to act upon them or not.

"They know the American people are now taking notice in a way in which they never took notice before, and gentlemen who talk one way and vote another are going to be retired to very quiet and private retreat."

Flight of Sea Eagle.

When one observes a sea eagle perched upon a lofty cliff, it may be remarked that in order to quit its eyrie it waits until a gust of wind arises, then it lets itself fall forward with extended wings, gives a beat or two as it turns, brings itself to face the wind, and thus mounts without a wing-beat hundreds of yards high. What is the secret of this feat?

With the Wallops.

"In the last ten years," snapped Mrs. Wallop, "has probably cost you at least $25 to color that meerschaum pipe of yours, and yet at that time you kicked at giving me $20 for a new carpet." "Well," drawled the tantalizing Wallop, "at the end of ten years I've got the pipe, while the carpet is worn out."

Equality.

"Lor' bless you, sir!" said an old cabbie, "them as toks about bequality don't know nothink about it! S'pose we was all equal at this here minnit; why, we shud be jist like old Rhodes's cows—a grazing; we shed all on us get a good feed, and jest as we'd done some precious thief or other would quietly drop in and milk us!"

Must Have Harmony.

"Now," said the architect, who was putting the finishing touches upon Mr. Nurich's new residence, "what color do you prefer for the parlor decorations?" "Oh! they've got to be red," replied Nurich. LESS DYSPEPSIA NOW —HERE'S THE REASON

The fact that there is less dyspepsia and indigestion in this community than there used to be is largely, we believe, due to the extensive use of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets, hundreds of packages of which we have sold. No wonder we have faith in them. No wonder we are willing to offer them to you for trial entirely at our risk.

Among other things, they contain Peppermint and Bismuth, two of the most digestives this known to medicine science. They soothe the inflamed stomach, aliev pain, check heartburn and distress, help to digest the food, and tend to quickly restore the stomach to its natural, comfortable healthy state.

There is no red tape about our guarantee. It means just what it says. We'll ask you no questions. Your word is enough for us. If Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets don't restore your stomach to health and comfortability, we want you to come back for your money. They are sold only at the 7,000 Rexall Stores, and in this town only by us. Three sizes, 25c, 50c and $1.00.—Smith Drug Co., 14 West Milwaukee St., Janesville, Wis.

Money Saved
by Making Your Cough Syrup at Home

Taken But a Few Moments, and Stop a Hard Cough
in a Hurry.

Cough medicines, as a rule, contain a large quantity of plain syrup. If you take one pint of granulated sugar, add 1/2 pint of warm water and stir about 2 minutes, you have as good syrup as money could buy.

If you will then put 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a pint bottle, and fill it up with the Sugar Syrup, you will have as much cough syrup as you could buy ready made for $2.50. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours. It keeps perfectly.

You will find it one of the best cough syrups you ever used—even in whooping cough. You can feel it take hold—usually conquers an ordinary cough in 24 hours. It is just laxative enough to have a good tonic effect, and the taste is pleasant.

It is a splendid remedy, too, for whooping cough, spasmodic croup, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.

This is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in gallic acid, and other healing pine elements. No other preparation will work in this formula.

This plan for making cough remedy with Pinex and Sugar Syrup is now used in more homes than any other cough remedy. The plan has often been imitated but never successfully.

A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

ROCK COUNTY BOYS TAKE SHORT COURSE

Large Number of Young Men Who Graduate Next Week Will Join
Back to Farm Movement.

It is estimated that between 80 and 90 per cent of the 150 young men graduating next week from the short course in agriculture at the University of Wisconsin, will return to the farms of this state to actually engage in farming.

The successes of former students as dairymen, stock raisers, poultrymen, orchardists, grain growers, and market gardeners are yearly attracting an increased number to this practical farmers' course. It has grown from thirteen students in one room in the third floor of an old building in 1885, to include 450 young men from sixty-five counties of the state, from eleven other states and two foreign countries in 1913.

Farm Interest Created.

Besides obtaining practical training in general agriculture, the young men graduating this week have acquired considerable information upon special lines of farming which they expect to pursue.

In addition to the knowledge acquired they have developed a love for the faem and farm life. Almost without exception they have expressed a desire to farm their own land, buy or new out a farm, or some other state or foreign conditions are similar.

That determination is not the mere expression of a boyish wish is evidenced by the fact that upon every agricultural board or organization in this state and in every important agricultural movement carried on in Wisconsin, the Short Course is well represented by graduates, now prominent, respected, and prosperous in their chosen lines of farming.

Of the two thousand graduates from this course since its inception in 1885, the following are from this county:

Providence, R. I.—"I cannot speak too highly of your Vegetable Compound as it has done wonders for me and I would not be without it. I had a displacement, bearing down, and backache, until I could hardly stand and was thoroughly run down when I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helped me and I am in the best of health at present. I work in a factory all day long besides doing my housework so you can see what it has done for me. I give you permission to publish my name and I speak of your Vegetable Compound to many of my friends."—Mrs. ABRIL LAWSON, 126 Lippitt St., Providence, R. I.

Danger Signals to Women are what one physician called backache, headache, nervousness, and the blues. In many cases they are symptoms of some female derangement or an inflammatory, ulcerative condition, which may be overcome by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Thousands of American women willingly testify to its virtue.

HOW YOU MAY THROW AWAY YOUR GLASSES

The statement is made that thousands wear eyeglasses who do not really need them. If you are one of these unfortunate, then these glasses may be ruining your eyes instead of helping them. Thousands who wear these "windows" may prove for themselves that they can dispense with glasses if they will get the following prescription filled at once: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Optona; fill a two-ounce bottle with warm water and drop in one Optona tablet. With this harmless liquid solution bathe the eyes two to four times daily, and you are likely to be astonished at the results right from the start.

Many who have been told that they have astigmatism, eye-strain, cataract, sore eyelids, weak eyes, conjunctivitis and other eye disorders, report wonderful benefits from the use of this prescription. Get this prescription filled and use it; you may so strengthen your eyes that glasses will not be necessary. Thousands who are blind or nearly so or who wear glasses would never have required them if they had cared for their eyes in time. Save your eyes before it is too late! Do not become one of these victims of neglect. Eyeglasses are only like crutches and every few years they must be changed to fit the ever-increasing weakened condition, so better see if you can, like many others get clear, healthy, strong magnetic eyes through the prescription here given. "You are such a novice in the business of love," said Sara sneeringly. "You are in the habit of being carried away, I fear."

"Oh, Sara!" You must put a stop to all this at once. How can you think of marrying him, Hetty Glynn? Send him—" "I do not intend to marry him," said the girl, suddenly calm and dignified.

"I am to draw but one conclusion, I suppose," said the other, regarding the girl intently.

"What do you mean?" Is it necessary to ask that question?"

The puzzled expression remained in the girl's eyes for a time, and then slowly gave way to one of absolute horror.

"How dare you suggest such a thing?" she cried, turning pale, then crimson. "How dare you?"

Sara laughed shortly. "Isn't the inference a natural one? You are forgetting yourself."

"I understand," said the girl, through pallid lips. Her eyes were dark with pain and misery. "You think I am altogether bad." She drooped perceptibly.

"You went to Burton's Inn," sentimentally.

"But, Sara, you must believe me. I did not know he was—married. For God's sake, do me the justice to—" "But you went there with him," insisted the other, her eyes hard as steel. "It doesn't matter whether he was married—or free. You went."

Hetty threw herself upon her companion's breast and wound her strong arms about her.

"Sara, Sara, you must let me explain—you must let me tell you everything. Don't stop me! You have refused to hear my plea!"

"And I still refuse," cried Sara, throwing her off angrily. "Good God, do you think I will listen to you? If you utter another word, I will—strangle you!"

Hetty shrank back, terrified. Slowly she moved backward in the direction of the door, never taking her eyes from the impassioned face of her protector.

"Don't, Sara, please don't!" she begged. "Don't look at me like that! I promise—I promise. Forgive me! I will not give you an instant's pain for all the world. You would suffer, you would—"

Sara suddenly put her hands over her eyes. A single moan escaped her lips—a hoarse gasp of pain.

"Dearest!" cried Hetty, springing to her side.

Sara threw her head up and met her with a cold, repelling look.

"Wait!" she commanded. "The time has come when you should know what is in my mind, and has been for months. It concerns you. I expect you to marry Leslie Wrandall."

Hetty stopped short.

"How can you jest with me, Sara?" she cried, suddenly indignant.

"I am not jesting," said Sara levelly.

"You—you—really mean—what you have just said?" The puzzled look gave way to one of revulsion. A great shudder swept over her.

"Leslie Wrandall must pay his brother's debt to you."

"To help me!" cried Sara, astonished in spite of herself.

"My God!" fell from the girl's stiff lips. "You—you must be going mad—mad!"

Sara laughed softly. "I have meant it almost from the beginning," she said. "It came to my mind the day that Charlie was buried. It has never been out of it for an instant since that day. Now you understand."

If she expected Hetty to fall into a fit of weeping, to collapse, to plead with her for mercy, she was soon to find herself mistaken. The girl straightened up suddenly and met her gaze with one in which there was the force determination. Her eyes were steady, her bosom heaved.

"And I have loved you so devotedly—so blindly," she said, in low tones of scorn. "You have been hating me all these months while I thought you were loving me. What a fool I have been! I might have known. You couldn't love me."

"When Leslie asks you tonight to marry him, you are to say that you will do so," said Sara, betraying no sign of having heard the bitter words.

"I shall refuse," said Hetty, every vestige of color gone from her face.

"There is an alternative," announced the other deliberately.

"You will expose me to—him? To his family?"

"I shall turn you over to them, to let them do what they will with you. If you go as his wife, the secret is safe. If not, they may have you as you really are, to destroy, to annihilate. Take your choice, my dear."

"And you, Sara?" asked the girl quietly. "What explanation will you have to offer for all these months of protection?"

Her companion stared. "Has the prospect no terror for you?"

"Not now. Not since I have found you out. The thing I have feared all along has come to pass. I am relieved, now that you show me just where I truly stand. But, I asked: what of you?"

"The world is more likely to applaud than to curse me, Hetty. It likes a too little for him to—to cast me off!"

"I am no such fool as that. The secret would be forever safe in that event. My triumph, as you call it, we will not discuss."

"How you must hate me, to be willing to do such an infamous thing to me!"

"I do not hate you, Hetty."

"In heaven's name, what do you call it?"

"Justification. Listen to me now. I am saying this for your good sense to seize and appreciate. Would it be right in me to allow you to marry any other man, knowing all that I know? There is but one man you can justly marry: the one who can repair the wreck that his own blood created. Not Brandon Booth, nor any man have Leslie Wrandall. He is the man who must pay."

"Let me tell you everything," cried Hetty.

"But Leslie will marry some one, and I intend that it shall be you. He shall marry the ex-chorus girl, the artist's model, the—the prostitute!

"Wait! Don't fly at me like that! Don't assume that look of virtuous horror! Let me say what I have to say. This much of your story shall they know, and no more. They will be proud of you!"

"Hetty's eyes were blazing. "You use that name—you call me that—and yet you have kissed me, caressed me—loved me!" she cried hoarse with passion.

"Hetty's eyes were blazing. "You use that name—you call me that—and yet you have kissed me, caressed me—loved me!" she cried hoarse with passion.

"After what has happened, Sara, you must not expect me to stay with you any longer. I cannot. You may give me up to the law, but—"

"Some one was tapping gently at the door.

"Shall I see who it is?" asked the girl, after a long period of silence.

"Yes."

"It was Murray. "Mr. Leslie has returned, Miss Castleton, and asks if he may see you at once. He says it is very important."

"I draw no line between mistress and prostitute."

"But I—"

"Enough!"

"You wrong me vilely! You must let me—"

"I have an excellent memory, and it serves me well."

Hetty suddenly threw herself upon the couch and buried her face in her arms. Great sobs shook her slender frame.

Sara stood over her and watched for a long time with pitiless eyes. Then a queer, uneasy, wondering light began to develop in those dark, ominous eyes. She leaned forward the better to listen to the choked, inarticulate words that were pouring from the girl's lips. At last, moved by some power she could not have accounted for, she knelt beside the quivering body, and laid her hand, almost timidly, upon the girl's shoulder.

"Hetty—Hetty, if I have wronged you in—in thinking that of you—I—" she began brokenly. Then she lifted her eyes, and the harsh light tried to steal back into them. "No, no! What am I saying? What a fool I am to give way—"

"You have wronged me—terribly!" came in smothered tones from the cushions. "I did not dream you thought that of me."

Sara turned away without a word or look of response.

Hetty quietly opened the door and went out.

Hetty were you—were you—

"No! No! On my soul, no!"

"Look into my eyes!"

The girl's eyes did not falter. She met the dark, penetrating gaze of the other and, though dimmed by tears, her blue eyes were steadfast and resolute. Sara seemed to be searching the very soul of her, the soul that laid her bare, denuded of every vestige of guile.

"—I think I believe you," came slowly from the lips of the searcher.

"You are looking the truth. I can see it. Hetty, I—I don't understand myself. It is so—so overwhelming, so tremendous. It is so incredible. Am I really believing you? Is it possible that I have been wrong in—"

"Let me tell you everything," cried Hetty.

"Not now! Wait! Give me time to think. Go away now. I want to be alone."
